

Dear FCC:

My husband and I signed up for the New Jersey Do Not Call program and found it much more effective than the Federal program. We can now have quiet evenings at home without being constantly interrupted by unsolicited phone calls. The computerized ones are especially distressing. They can tie up your phone and even hanging up on them does not stop the message. If they come onto the automatic message machine, they can take up most of the tape. We have missed important personal family calls because of this. When we signed up for the Federal program, there was no significant effect, but the New Jersey program made a dramatic difference.

Please do NOT remove this program. In fact, you should make the Federal Program as stringent as this one.
